Current Primary Care Physicians by Age in 2014 Chilton County, July 2009

SOURCE: Alabama Medical Education Consortium's Practicing Physician Database. Only physicians working for a full time equivalency (FTE) of 0.33 or greater are included in this graphic.

Primary Care Physicians Per 10,000 Population U.S., Alabama and Chilton County, 2009

SOURCES: Alabama and county data is from the AMEC Practicing Physician Database and includes only physicians actively practicing primary care. U.S. data is from the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Caution should be exercised in using these rates since the county rate is based on full time equivalents of service while state and national rates are based on the number of licensed physicians.

Federal Health Professional Shortage Area (HPSA) Designation for the County:

A Health Professional Shortage Area (HPSA) is broadly defined as being an area or population component that the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services designates as having an inadequate supply of health care providers. HPSA designations are made for the provision of primary care, dental care, and mental care.

Chilton County is currently designated as a Health Professional Shortage Area by the federal Office of Health Professions for the provision of primary care service to the low-income population. This classification was made on January 13, 2006 when it was determined that four additional full time equivalents of primary care service was needed to meet the minimal needs of the low-income population in this county.

Availability of Primary Care for the County's Medicaid Population:

Most current primary care practitioners do not provide service to the Medicaid population. Since this is subject to change, Medicaid patients should contact the clinic prior to receiving services to assure that new patients are being accepted and the desired service is provided.
